Support for Shoulder & Elbow

Elbow is the visible joint between the upper and lower parts of the arm enabling our forearm and hand to be moved towards and away from the body. Human elbow joint has three different portions surrounded by a common joint capsule. These are joints between the three bones of the elbow, the humerus of the upper arm, the radius and the ulna of the forearm.

Common Problems : Tennis Elbow, Golfer's elbow, fracture, dislocation, olecranon bursitis etc.

Shoulder forms the largest and is a major joint in the human body structure. Its utility is manifold, from providing support to the arms to lending flexibility; shoulder enable an individual to carry out multiple activities in their everyday life. Being the most used joint in the human anatomy, it is prone to being unstable. Human shoulder is made up of three bones; the clavicle (collarbone), the scapula (shoulder blade), and the humerus (upper arm bone) as well as associated muscles, ligaments and tendons.

Common Problems : Rotator cuff muscle strain or tear, labrum rupture, impingement syndrome, adhesive capsulitis, subluxation, dislocation and fracture etc.

Universal Shoulder Immobilizer

Code - OC 2026

Recommended in post-operative immobilization of shoulder joint, shoulder dislocation etc. Provides immobilization of shoulder joint. Easy to wear. Can be worn on both left and right sides. Adjustable hook and loop for desired adjustment. Soft cushion pad to ease pressure around neck

Support for Ankle & Foot

The ankle is a "hinged" joint capable of moving the foot in two primary directions: away from the body (plantar flexion) and toward the body (dorsiflexion). Its anatomy is formed by the meeting of three bones. The end of the shinbone of the leg (tibia) and a small bone in the leg (fibula) meet a large bone in the foot, called the talus, to form the ankle. Ligaments present on each side of the ankle provide the required stability.

Common problems: Sprains, strains, fracture, Achilles tendinitis etc.

Compression

Compression therapy works on the principle of applying pressure on certain parts of the human body which require immediate attention due to underlying physical or medical conditions. The pressure applied by such stockings and socks enables an individual's blood vessels to function better, allowing oxygen-rich blood to flow freely across the arteries.

Compression aids is developed to provide firmness, support and blood supply to certain regions of an individual's body. Different types of socks and stockings are available for body parts such as thighs, arms, forearms, calves, ankles, etc.

Traction Aids

Traction is the application of forces in direct opposition to each other to produce a separation of two body parts or stretching of soft tissues. In the area of spine care, traction is commonly used to treat cervical and lumbar pain. Traction therapy is also used to realign and stabilize bone fractures, reduce pain at the fracture area before surgery, correct deformities and contractures etc.
